The Arthur Henry Hobbs Memorial Cup

Saturday afternoon is the first ever Arthur Henry Hobbs women's football tournament.

It's being held ahead of the England team taking part in the FIFA Women's World Cup™, and the event today will celebrate local talent and pay tribute to Arthur, a local man who championed women's football after it was banned by the Football Association in 1921

He challenged the notion that only men were able to play the 'beautiful game', defying the rules in 1967 by setting up a competitive tournament in the town with eight teams.

By 1969 52 teams took part. He went on to form the Ladies Football Association of Great Britain and by 1972 the FA lifted the ban.

Deal Town Council and Deal Town Rangers have teamed up to organize the tournament to celebrate women's football and Arthur's fight to tackle inequality.

Arthur's daughter Jill Martin lives in Deal. She said: "My dad loved sport and I wish he was here to see women's football today. Look what's been achieved.

"The standard is incredible, such athletes with such a passion for the game and it's captured the nation's hearts. I still find it hard to believe that it was illegal for women to play right up to the 1970s but Dad changed all that and changed it here in Deal.

"Sport is so important to everyone, not just the physical side, but the social impact and it builds your confidence too, gives you skills that you can carry through all parts of your life. My dad knew the importance and was angered by the inequality so he fought and fought . He was fearless and I am so proud of him for that.

"He would have really enjoyed seeing the Lionesses and to see the tournament here today. I feel so proud of him and so proud of Deal too."
